L'Esquerra Crevillent

Exactly 40 years ago, the first democratic government in Crevillent was established after many years without freedom. They were tumultuous times during which there was a great political indecision but the citizens of Crevillent set a good example with their votes and with the people in the institutions that knew how to live up to the challenge of a much needed consensus, in spite of differences.

They were times of change like those that we are living today in which it is also necessary to know how to understand each other, leaving aside protagonism. However, many insist on making us believe the opposite, on pointing out what it is that separates us, asking us where we come from, what we believe in, who we love, who we voted for last time or what colour are the hands of those we want to help. They are the ones who will win if nothing changes. Some will continue to say that they are the only government possible and others will repeat to you, as they do every four years, that are the only alternative when they don't even update or renew themselves.

But one day they will all be silent and it will be your turn to talk. You will have some breakfast, leave your house, go down the street and arrive at the polling station. Imagine for a moment that the next day the television newsreader says that the same group as always have not won this time, while watching you begin to smile, because you know that things have begun to change.

Give us the opportunity to change history by your side.

Make it possible, you are the key to making this a town full of life.
